

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A wet-shaving razor unit for cutting hair from the skin having a V-shaped handle with two elongate rod-like arms pivotally joined together at the vertex, connected by a flexible cross member near their midpoints, an upper portion of the arms being bent forward to make pivotal connection with a flexible blade housing containing one or more elongate blades, having a lubricant on its skin engaging portions, and able to tilt and flex on pivotal connections with the handle, the V-shaped handle and flexible blade head acting in harmony to give safe, close, and comfortable shaves of angular, convex, and concave body surfaces.